Is It a Threat – Or Just a Behavioral Problem?

Recently, the questions arose again: To whom should I refer this student? To the Threat Assessment Team? Someone else? Who's on the Threat Assessment Team?

It seems, then, that it's time for a review. There are two teams operating at NRCC to assist you: the Threat Assessment Team (TAT) and the Behavioral Intervention Team (BIT). Members of those teams are shown below.

Threat Assessment Team

Melissa Anderson
Margaret Bryner
Angie Covey
Amy Hall
Pat Huber
Tony Nicolo
Mark Rowh
Don Stowers
Fritz Streff
John Van Hemert

Behavioral Intervention Team

Wendy Chinn
Jeananne Dixon
Peggy Dunn
Becky Hubble
Ben Kramer
Peggy Taylor

To assist you in determining which team should handle specific situations, the attached Action Guide has been prepared. Please feel free to print and post copies of this guide in your offices or classrooms. A referral form developed by the Behavioral Intervention Team and referenced in the Action Guide is also attached. These tools should be helpful as you handle various student issues.

What if the concern involves an employee or a visitor to campus? Since the two teams above work together closely, feel free to contact anyone on the list. As a default, call Counseling for students, Human Resources for employees, and Security for visitors. However, contacting any member of the Threat Assessment or Behavioral Intervention Team will assure that the concern is heard and handled appropriately.

As you know, NRCC has experienced unseasonably warm and mild winter weather. However, Punxsutawny Phil saw his shadow recently, so inclement winter weather is not outside of the realm of possibility. Even if we never see another snowflake, both students and employees can benefit from receiving NRCC Alert messages.

NRCC Alert is used to broadcast information about emergencies, drills and exercises, weather-related closings and delays, and other events that affect the lives of people on campus. If you haven't already done so, sign up today – and encourage students to do the same. Visit the NRCC website and scroll to the bottom of the Featured Links menu on the left.
